1 WHEREAS, Alcohol Awareness Month is a public health program organized by the

3 education regarding the dangers of alcoholism and issues related to alcohol. The program was 4 started in April of 1987; and

6 and remains a public health emergency that continues to pose a significant public health and 7 safety threat to the State, costing hundreds of lives each year; and

8 WHEREAS, In addition to opioids and heroin, abuse of other dangerous substances, 9 including alcohol, is on the rise, and the disease of addiction is not exclusive to any one 10 substance; and

11 WHEREAS, Alcohol use disorder (AUD) is a chronic brain disorder that is characterized 12 by an impaired ability to stop or control alcohol use despite adverse social, occupational, or 13 health consequences and often goes untreated. The number of individuals affected by alcoholism
14 and AUD during the COVID-19 pandemic has risen significantly, and the dangers of excessive 15 alcohol use should not be ignored; and

17 the third-leading cause of preventable death in the United States, according to research conducted 18 in 2018; and

19 WHEREAS, The Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration reports

1 that AUD was the most common substance use disorder among adults in the United States in 2 2018, affecting 14.25 million people; and

3 WHEREAS, In 2019, the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration
4 reported that around 58,000 Rhode Island adults qualify as suffering from alcohol use disorder
5 and 53,000 Rhode Island adults need, but are not receiving, AUD treatment at a specialty facility.
6 That means that 91.38 percent of Rhode Island adults suffering from alcohol use disorder need,
7 but are not receiving, AUD treatment; and

9 Mortality Weekly Report states that in Rhode Island there were approximately 339 alcohol 10 attributable deaths each year and 27.6 years of life lost per alcohol-attributable death from 2011 11 to 2015; and

12 WHEREAS, Nationally, alcohol-related disorders are a leading cause of 7-day and 30-

14 potentially preventable hospital readmission related to a substance use disorder initial admission 15 in Rhode Island; and

17 percent for both men and women from 2006-2014, and the costs for such visits increased from 18 $4.1 billion to $15.3 billion in the same time period. In 2016, alcohol-related disorders were the 20 department. In 2014, alcohol abuse was eighth in reasons for potentially preventable emergency 21 department visits in Rhode Island and it was second in those covered by Medicaid; and

22 WHEREAS, Alcohol use has increased during the COVID-19 pandemic. According to 23 RTI International, alcohol consumption, exceeding drinking guidelines, and binge drinking
24 increased from February 2020 to November 2020. Specialists at hospitals across the country said
25 rates of admissions for alcoholic liver disease have leapt by up to 50 percent since March 2020; 26 and

27 WHEREAS, A 2021 article in the Journal of General Internal Medicine stated “the full 28 impact of COVID-19 on alcohol use is not yet known. However, the current rise in drinking 29 during the acute phase of the pandemic mandates a deliberate and clear public health and medical 30 response and a multifaceted approach”; and

31 WHEREAS, Meeting people where they are in their recovery journey is a critical 32 component of public health and every setting of care should be aware of the signs of dangerous 33 alcohol use, trained in screening and assessing for, and treating, alcohol use disorder; and 34 WHEREAS, In December 2020, the Consolidated Appropriations Act of 2021 (Pub. L.

1 116-260) was enacted, which included $1.65 billion in supplemental SAPT Block Grant funding
